The main change is that customers will need to enter a valid dealing or plan type in the production purpose panel on the receipt when producing a Certificate of Title or WAL Certificate to enable registration of a dealing or plan. The most common production purposes will no longer be pre-printed as part of the form.

A list of valid dealing and plan types is attached. Customers must select the appropriate dealing or plan type from this list and print it clearly in the ‘Purpose’ section when completing the new production form.

Additional text such as the name of the lessee in the lease for which the title is being produced, the address of the premises being leased, the type of plan(s), etc can also be entered in the production purpose panel. For example, if a Certificate of Title is produced for a plan of redefinition to be followed by a strata plan, the production purpose will be ‘Deposited Plan – Plan of Redefinition/Strata Plan’.

These changes are being introduced in an effort to reduce the number of requisitions issued because the stated production purpose is unclear. For example, in some cases only a name or address is supplied with no indication of the plan or dealing type authorised by the production of the Certificate of Title.

The changes are also required to enable validation of production purposes by users when electronic conveyancing is implemented. Generation of results for these inquiries will be dependent on valid dealing and plan types and codes.

From Wednesday 1 May 2013 LPI will not accept Certificates of Title or WAL Certificates for production if the purpose of production cannot be linked to a dealing or plan type.

Customers can continue to use old production receipt forms until their supplies are exhausted, as long as they enter a valid dealing or plan type on the form.

The format of the Multiple Dealing Production Receipt will not be changing in the short term. However customers using this form for production in relation to dealings other than leases will need to enter a valid dealing type when completing the 'other dealings' panel on the form.

Further Information

Customers who are unsure which dealing or plan type to use for production in a particular case can seek advice in person by visiting the Document Registration Services Production Counter on the ground floor of LPI's Queens Square Sydney office.
